A DEARTH OF DISASTERS FOR FIRE BRIGADE FMV TEST!

Our local volunteer firemen are currently not quite sure whether to rejoice or despair. Since they began the first trial of the prototype Fire Medical Vehicle in August there have been unusually few fire or medical emergencies in the district.

During the four months test period in Diamond Harbour, the FMV officially replaces our standard fire engine and because of the great difference between the two appliances a great deal of training has gone into making sure that our firemen are totally familiar with every aspect of the new vehicle. New protocols have had to be developed across the whole response operation from the moment the men arrive at the station, their dealing with the emergency and right through until the appliance is back at the station and readied for the next call-out.

Given that the aim of the trial is be able to fully assess the suitability of the FMV in its dual role, after each incident a debriefing is held to identify and record both the good and not-so-good aspects and to consider possible improvements in both the vehicle and the way it is used. And of course it is not just the Diamond Harbour Brigade which is interested in the outcome of the trial. During October the team hosted two visits from Head Office in Wellington. First was a group of directors of the NZ Fire Service Strategic Leadership Team lead by the Chief Executive and National Commander Paul Baxter, (L) who returned a week later with the full board of the NZ Fire Service Commission, namely the chairman, Right Honourable Wyatt Creech, (R) and members Dave McFarlane, Vicki Caisley, Angela Hauk-Willis, and Rangi Wills.

After a welcome by Chief Fire Officer, Don Cameron, and introductions by Mr Creech, the gathering at the Diamond Fire Station was addressed by Bob Palmer and Barry Craw who spoke respectively about the medical and fire capabilities of the FMV. Overall it was agreed that the new appliance’s design and construction had been carefully thought out and it generally served its purpose very well. It was noted however that each rural fire district is unique in its topography and thus in its management of emergencies. As Barry explained, until recently the availability of mains water supply for fire fighting was a major concern in some parts of the wider Diamond Harbour area, so the fact that the FMV carries only 4 minutes of water supply in contrast to the normal appliance’s 13 minutes could have been an issue, while Bob felt that the medical-related features of the FMV would be valuable in our community as a potential work space for our skilled doctors and nurses who are readily available if needed as well as for transport of a patient to the rescue helicopter’s landing area.

His comments led Commander Paul Baxter to compliment our emergency services on their ability to work together, and pointed out that this kind of co-operation was a national aim.

Mr Creech agreed, saying that his board’s first visit to Diamond Harbour had given the members a good insight into our vulnerability of being cut off from the city in a disaster and how essential it is for such a community to be self-sufficient. He went on to congratulate the Diamond Harbour Fire Brigade on its sturdy station, its excellent facilities and additional items it stores such as the powerful generator and the defibrillator. In a disaster the Fire Station is one building which must survive because the role of the Fire Brigade is crucial. A review of the Fire Service Legislation is planned and it is expected that the provisions will be modernised, which may include increased emergency powers for Fire Chiefs.

Mr Creech also thanked the volunteers for their honest appraisal of the FMV and cautiously hoped that there would be further opportunities for them to test it before it moves to Little River later this month.

Kia Ora Tatou, Hello Everyone,
Term Four has started and the children and parents are enjoying catching up with each other after the 2 week holiday. This term we have lots planned with a trip to the sensory room in town for the younger kids, there will be baby chicks again, an outing to pony rides, plenty of use of water, crazy gloop, make our calendar art, and perhaps deconstruct some unused equipment.

Request for untreated wood: Our carpentry area always needs more off cuts of untreated timber — any donations gratefully received.

Please note we will be having an open fun day on Saturday November 1 from 10am - 1pm, everyone welcome (see p 11). Come down and meet your neighbours - thanks to Chch City Council - as a part of the Neighbourhood Week celebrations so would love to see you there. We will have craft making and biscuit icing activities set up, and it’s a chance to have a look at your local centre no matter what the age. And of course, if you would like to meet the locals and have your child enjoy these fantastic activities and more, please come for a visit during session times.

Playcentre is a parent-run early childhood education centre with a paid supervisor, Session times are Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays 9.15-11.45am. Phone 329 4515 or email diamondharbourpc@gmail.com.

WE WENT TO THE FIRE STATION!

On Monday October 20 we were lucky to have a fun visit to the Fire Station and see the fire engines up close. A big thank you to The Volunteer Fire Service, especially Don Cameron and Denzil Belcher who kindly took time out of their day to show our Tamariki (children) the new Fire Medical Vehicle and all that goes into being a firefighter. Many families came, even tamariki who do not normally attend on Mondays made sure their parents brought them down to enjoy all the activities.

Don and Denzil made it really fun for pre-schoolers. They got out all the equipment from inside the FMV and let tamariki have rides on the special chair — parents could have a go too, if they wanted! They also showed us the bed on wheels and some had a ride on that. It was amazing to see how much can be fitted into the space, and learn how it can offer both accident and fire assistance. Everyone had a chance to sit inside, it has really cool seats, and there is a video monitor so people in the back can see the road ahead. We had fun using the communications walkie talkie between driver and passengers.

Inside the Fire Station Denzil showed us how fast he can get his pants on; it was funny to see the trousers sitting waiting with the boots inside, it is very important that they get into the truck, and on their way as quickly as possible. Then the fire hoses came out! Don showed James Dennis how to turn the hose on (below)

Joshua Wear, Jonty Leech and friends (left) really got a blast! So did Don (below), showing that firemen have to be able to take the hard stuff, to the delight of the children — and Mum, Amy Leech, (below left) had a good squirt as well!

Lastly, the firemen very kindly gave all the children some great colourful Fire Engine posters, postcards and stickers.

The Diamond Harbour Playcentre tamariki want to thank Don and Denzil very much and thank you to the Fire Service for allowing us in for a look. The children and the Mums and Dads loved it!

Hei Konei Ra, Goodbye for now.

PS: Annya and Alex have also put a request to Santa and he says he will be able to make a special visit to Playcentre in December. He usually rides a fire engine to get down the hill to our centre, so it’s very exciting for young and old!
KIDSFIRST COMES TO DIAMOND HARBOUR

The sparkling new Kidsfirst Early Learning Centre building at Diamond Harbour is now nearing completion. The innovative, up-to-the-minute design conforms to all the Civil Defence standards and once completed will arguably be the safest building in the harbour area. Designed by Opus architect Kate Loader, the building is environmentally sustainable in both its construction and its energy usage. Solar panels on the roof will not only provide for all the normal electricity usage including underfloor heating, but is also expected to generate surplus energy which will be fed directly to Diamond Harbour School in whose grounds the building is situated.

As well as the usual amenities, Kidsfirst at Diamond Harbour consists of three main areas. At the west end is the substantial community room (photo below) which, in addition to its use for staff and parents, will be available to the community for meetings and gatherings. To the east are the two open-plan large sunny classrooms divided by special learning areas and offices. In the photo below, a door to the community room can be seen behind the workman.

Kidsfirst is a fully NZ owned not-for-profit organisation that has developed and maintained kindergartens in Christchurch and on the West Coast for over 100 years – as the place local kids come to learn, play and have fun. Kidsfirst in Diamond Harbour is expected to be open for the start of the 2015 school year and will cater for children from birth to age five, five days a week. The NZ Govt subsidy of 20 hours free for children 3-6 years old applies, and additional free attendance may be available under certain conditions – refer to contact details in the notice at right. All Kidsfirst kindergartens employ fully-trained teachers.

Compiled by Elaine with material from Kidsfirst website and brochures and Jemma Hartley, communications consultant.

If you would like to know more about Kidsfirst Early Learning Centre in Diamond Harbour you are invited to attend the meeting at 6pm, Tuesday 4th November at Governors Bay School, or visit www.kidsfirst.co.nz/diamondharbour or call 329 3391.
A BIG THANK YOU— FROM AND TO BARBARA PICKERING

BARBARA SAYS...

I always suspected, but now I am sure, that along with a few special people from the City, the citizens of Diamond Harbour are indeed very exceptional folk.

On Saturday September 27, I invited approximately "90" people to help me celebrate my 90th Birthday. Most of you who attended I have known for the 20 years that I have lived here and even more with my constant visits before that. You have all been special friends.

On your invitation I asked you NOT to bring presents but would you please make a donation to a worthy cause. I really did want this milestone to mean something and what better cause than a donation to the Canterbury Westpac Helicopter Service. The party was a great success, with good music, food and refreshments and we had an enjoyable time. After clean up, etc, it was time to see if we had some donations??!!

WOW - what can I say! You were all absolutely marvellous and generous and wonderful friends. We were able to contribute $1000 to our cause. It was just beyond belief and I can't thank you enough. I will never forget all of you.

Thank you so much once again.

Barbara Pickering

CANTERBURY WEST COAST AIR RESCUE TRUST RESPONDS...

Barbara Pickering has been a long-time supporter of the Christchurch-based Westpac Rescue Helicopter Service, but it was not until recently that we had the pleasure and privilege of meeting this exceptional woman.

In 2013, Barbara selflessly asked guests at her 89th birthday party to make donations to the Westpac Rescue Helicopter Service in lieu of gifts. Close to $300 was raised by the small group of guests.

In August this year, Barbara contacted the Trust to say that she would again be asking guests at her forthcoming milestone birthday to support the Westpac Rescue Helicopter Service. And support they did! Barbara and her extended circle of family, friends and neighbours raised the roof in Diamond Harbour, and in the process also raised $1,000 for the Westpac Rescue Helicopter Service!

We are so grateful to everyone who made this donation possible. Thank you. But special thanks are reserved for Barbara, whose generosity and thoughtfulness are truly something special. The Diamond Harbour Community is very fortunate indeed to be able to count this special lady as one of its own.

Monies raised have been applied to the purchase of three replacement helicopter helmets for our rescue helicopter pilots and crew. So on behalf of the Trustees, Crew and Staff of the Canterbury West Coast Air Rescue Trust and Westpac Rescue Helicopter Service, a very HUGE thank you for all your generous support.

WIND TURBINE PROJECT AT ORTON BRADLEY PARK

Do small things matter anymore? Ours is a world obsessed by the obese, the mega and the utterly massive. A small step is rarely seen as the start of a thousand-mile journey, but as something isolated and insignificant. It's tough for small projects to fight their way into the 24-hour news cycle and the Darwinian struggle for just a few moments of your attention.

Sometimes though it's neat to step back, appreciate the little things, and not get too concerned that you're not in a fabulous Manhattan apartment discussing something critical with a bunch of really important people. Sometimes it's nice to keep it local and get the scale just right; so we can all enjoy a Goldilocks moment.

The team at Orton Bradley Park have a habit of kick starting boutique projects. Their latest is installing a wind turbine to generate electricity. They would much rather spend money to increase the awesomeness of the park facilities than pay another power bill. By installing a wind turbine to generate electricity the Park will dramatically reduce their power bills.

The wind turbine has an onboard generator that converts wind energy into electricity. This power is used by lights and electric appliances throughout the park. Any excess electricity produced by the turbine is sold back to the grid.

The new wind turbine will continue a long tradition of renewable electricity generation at Orton Bradley Park. A water wheel and turbine powered the electric lights at the homestead in the early 1900’s; you can see it in operation at the Mill House next time you visit. Because of the astonishing recent advances in renewable energy technology it is easy to forget that it is such an old-fashioned part of the energy mix in Canterbury.

The turbine will be located on the knoll behind the Mill House. Windflow modelling suggests there is an abundance of wind at the site; and this is reinforced by the recent installation of an anemometer to precisely measure the average wind speed.

The Park has resource consent for the turbine and satisfactory geotechnical soil test results with installation slated for 2015. The best turbine hasn’t yet been selected but it will have a maximum tower height of 10 metres, a power rating of 3kW (kilowatts), and swept blade area of 15 square metres.

To install the turbine, Orton Bradley Park needs to raise $60,000 - this will buy a robust 3kW turbine, inverter, installation, cabling, foundation and connection to the grid.

You can make a tax-deductible donation at www.ortonbradley.co.nz to help make this project a reality. Look for the big green button Please Donate to our Wind Project on the home page.

Why bother?

Wind energy is renewable, clean, has low operating costs, is efficient and is the perfect complement to solar and hydro power. Help continue the long tradition of renewable energy generation at Orton Bradley Park. The money saved on power over the lifetime of the turbine (25 years) will be used to maintain, upgrade and improve the facilities at Orton Bradley Park. Increase the power resilience of the Lyttelton Harbour basin.

Sam Masters
During a recent walk around our neighbourhood, we noticed a couple of huge, ancient pine trees, cut down and lying on the ground, together with some poplars. Immediately, a sense of sadness took hold of us. Those beautiful majestic trees stood there for decades and now were no more. Once again, habitat for wildlife destroyed by human hands.

An elderly man was busy cutting it into smaller pieces. We asked him why the trees had to go. On request of the owner of the house, he told us. The macrocarpa hedge over there will be next. He pointed at a beautiful 3 metres high and dense, lush green hedge. But why? we asked in shock. Too much maintenance. The owners want it gone and replace it with a fence. We asked him, What about the birds? Birds? he replied, surprised. Yes, we said, birds love hedges and trees, they are their favourite habitats!

The man grinned and obviously didn’t understand what the fuss was all about. It never ever crossed his mind, or that of the homeowners involved, that they were destroying precious wildlife sanctuaries. There will be a nice fence in its place, he continued and walked away.

Unfortunately, we see the cutting of trees and bushes all around us. Sometimes it is necessary for safety reasons, but most of the times it is just an easy way out for human discomfort. The Lincoln University of Canterbury describes planting hedges and trees as a way to reduce erosion, to form habitats and corridors for wildlife, to create interesting landscapes.

We all know our rivers are not clean any more: so please do not destroy our Green image as well.

Let us all think carefully about the consequences for nature before we cut down or remove trees or shrubs or more. Be a conservationist, not an exterminator!

We all want our birds thriving, so please don’t just blame the cats!

Rustic No-Knead Bread
Do you bake your own bread? The question seems to be on everyone’s lips. Many home bread makers use a bread machine. I have been a hands on bread maker for many years (cleaning the bread machine would take longer than making the dough from scratch). I like the less airy bread and I must confess to being a kneading bread maker.

But for a start, this very simple no-knead recipe might encourage you later to try out different flour mixtures and methods. The best way to become a good bread maker is to bake regularly... at least once a week; the more you bake the better the bread. Here is a simple recipe – you will need a heavy oven-proof dish with lid.

Ingredients

4½ cups white flour (start with white and high standard, later change to less glutinous flours like whole grain).
2¼ tsp salt
1 tsp active dry yeast
2¼ cups warm water

Method

Mix all ingredients together in a bowl to form sticky dough (a few lumps are OK). Cover with a wet towel or glad wrap and leave for 24 hours.

Tip the dough out onto a well floured chopping board and fold over a few times. There is no need to knead. Leave to sit for 2 hours.

Preheat oven to 230°C. Half an hour before you are ready to bake the bread, put your oven-proof dish (empty) with lid into the oven to heat.

Pull the dish out of the oven, lightly oil it and tip the dough into the pot. Put the lid on and bake in the oven for 30 mins. Then remove lid and bake for a further 15 mins.
You will have a very nice crusty fresh bread.
Enjoy.

If you can wait... don't buy 8
Thinking of buying a new Windows laptop or PC? If you can put it off until next year when Windows 10 hits the shops, you might want to wait.
Windows 10? Shouldn't that be Windows 9, you ask? The current version is Windows 8, surely Microsoft can count?
8 + 1 = 9, not 10, right?
The reason Microsoft chose to call the new version 10, rather than 9 is to distance it from the disaster of Windows 8 – and to emphasise how different this new version of Windows will be from its hugely unpopular predecessor.
Windows 8 essentially requires one to learn how to use a computer all over again. Not only is 8 completely different from previous versions of Windows, but its New UI (user interface) and Start Screen, with those flashily Live Tiles, is designed for touch-screen entertainment, not the mouse and keyboard driven desktop applications that businesses and most adults use computers for.
I have been taking a look at the technical preview of Windows 10 and surprise, surprise, it looks a lot like Windows 7 (so 8 + 1 = 7 or something similar, it seems) and that's a good thing after the Windows 8 debacle. The desktop is back, front and centre (not shunted off to one side as in 8) but most importantly of all, the familiar Start Menu (which has been the primary means of Windows navigation for the past 20 years) has been restored.
The bottom line is that anyone who is familiar with any version of Windows up to and including 7, will feel right at home with Windows 10. It represents the usual incremental change (in this case from 7) rather than the enormous leap (into oblivion) that was 8. So if you are thinking of upgrading, you would be well advised to give 8 a big miss and wait until next year when 10 becomes available.
But what if you can't wait? Perhaps your computer has died or it is still running Windows XP? When Microsoft ended XP support earlier this year (in an attempt to stampede reluctant users to Windows 8), it stopped releasing patches to close newly discovered security vulnerabilities. However, because patches have continued to be distributed in the form of monthly updates to later versions of Windows, it is now easy to discover and exploit those same vulnerabilities in XP.
The bottom line is that it is no longer safe to connect to the internet with an XP computer and waiting for Windows 10 next year involves a very big risk – particularly as the internet becomes increasingly dangerous.
So what are the options? If you go to TradeMe or pricespy.co.nz it is still possible to find new Windows 7 laptops. If you want a desktop PC you can get one built and have Windows 7 installed on it. Alternatively, you could go for a used computer – again TradeMe is a good place to look.
If you cannot resist the increasingly generous markdowns on Windows 8 laptops as retailers desperately attempt to move stock – or you already have one – it is possible (after upgrading to 8.1) to lock it to the desktop and install a third party Start Menu, such as Classic Shell. This will make it work almost (but not quite) like Windows 7. Ron VET-SPOT

After Hours Emergency Cover

I’d like to share my thoughts on this important area of veterinary service, and particularly as to how we work it on the Peninsula.

Firstly on the practical side, if your animal is in distress, all you need to do is phone our clinic on 325 1940. If we’re closed you’ll get a message telling you to ring our cellphone 027 374 5492 in case of a veterinary emergency. Because of patchy Peninsula cellphone coverage, if I know I’ll be out of Vodafone’s coverage area or away from our signal booster at home I’ll leave an alternative contact number on the cellphone, this may be a landline if I’m at someone’s house or our Spark cellphone, particularly if I’m at the Little River domain, school or community centre that only gets Spark coverage. Generally with a small animal emergency, I’ll meet you at our clinic in Little River, and for large animals I’ll come to you. Although I appreciate it can be a long drive to Little River, someone has to do it, hopefully for you it’s a once in a lifetime occasion, whereas for me it could be several times a week. Also for drips, hospitalisation or surgery which these cases often require, we need to be at the clinic anyway.

Secondly what constitutes an emergency – i.e. when should you call us? The short answer is anything that you’d feel uncomfortable leaving until the next working day, and really if you’re not sure, phone anyway, and we can help you decide.

Remember too that there is an extra cost involved in being seen after hours, so allow this to help you decide if we need to see your animal right away. Ask yourself would I phone my doctor, or go to the emergency room with this problem myself? A good knowledge of first aid can make a big difference, and the principles with animals are no different from humans.

The veterinary council’s code of professional conduct requires vets to be available after hours for their existing clients. Since starting up my own surgery, I’ve been blessed with locums who have been prepared to stand in for me occasionally and allow me and my family the chance to get away, while still providing a full service here. Historically, providing 24/7 after hours cover on Banks Peninsula has been at a high personal cost to myself, my family, and my predecessors. My dream for the future is to share after hours duties with my colleagues; I believe that this would be a win-win situation giving us all more free time without reducing the emergency service. Until now my approaches on this matter have been turned down, but I remain hopeful that at some point circumstances will change. Here’s hoping you won’t need the after hours service, but remember we are available if you do.

LIVING WELL

Overcoming Overwhelm

So often in the world overwhelm stops us before we even begin. It’s too big. It’s too hard. It’s too scary. We are great at talking ourselves out of things.

Often when things seem too big and too scary, we’re looking at the whole picture at once, and that can be incredibly overwhelming. When we break it down though, it becomes more manageable, and if we do just one piece at a time, it becomes completely doable.

A year ago I worked with a hoarder who had just that issue. After dealing with the reasons for accumulating and holding on to things, she was ready to let them go, but had the mammoth task of cleaning out rooms so full she couldn’t even get into them. Just thinking about it was enough to cause overwhelm and a sense of despair at having no idea where to even start.

I asked her to focus in on just one small thing and deal with just that one thing. In fact I made it a rule to not look at the whole lot at once, to just look at that one thing. She chose a set of mugs that were still in their box and which she had no need for. They were easily accessible and she decided to give them away as a present to a friend who was moving into a new flat. She then realised her friend might be in need of a number of things at once and started thinking of other things that were also within reach. All of a sudden the barrier of overwhelm was gone and she was able to focus in on things she could deal with.

Constant effort of this kind was needed, but consistently focusing on the small thing in front of her and dealing with these things one at a time meant that within a few months she had reclaimed the kitchen, the lounge and a guest bedroom, feeling proud to have guests over to stay.

Often life is like this. The task in front of us seems huge. However if we break it down into little pieces and focus on doing one piece at a time, the task becomes much more doable. Furthermore, doing the first task gives us much more clarity and motivation around doing the second, and that momentum continues to gather with each step we take.

So next time you’re feeling overwhelmed with the task in front of you, break it down. Identify the first small step you need to take towards that task, and just do that step. Then, identify the second step and take that one. This keeps the task manageable and keeps you resourceful around doing it, plus before you know it you’ll find the task is well underway and the path before you is much clearer, making the task far more likely to be completed in the end.

Koha will go towards costs of taking leftover items to the community garage sale.

Orton Bradley Park Pump Track
Volunteer Call Out:
Orton Bradley Park will is building a new kids cycle Pump Track alongside the playground area.
This initiative will enhance the Park as a family destination, and has been kindly funded by generous donations from the local community. The talented team from The Huxter Mountain Bike Trust are providing their services in designing and constructing the track.

We have mountains of clay at the ready, and the plan is to construct the track on the weekend of 1/2 November (weather permitting).
We need some keen volunteers on Sun November 2 to assist the construction team with shovelling clay, planting and general support.

The track will likely be very popular and we aim to organise a group of local supporters to assist with regular track maintenance.

Sculture on the Point & Live at the Point are Back

_Sunday 28 Dec 2014 - Sun 22 Feb 2015, 1-4pm_

Start looking for your picnic rugs and sunscreen! Live at the Point is gearing up for another great summer! SPRIG is happy to announce that planning for these events is well underway with most bands booked and funding coming in. We have even had bands contact us this year which is fantastic - they have had such great experiences in the past or have heard about us and are very keen to be involved.

Not only that, but we are having our 2nd Sculpture on the Point with 4 new pieces currently being made. Look forward to seeing works from Sam Mahon, Hannah Kidd, Aaron Te Rangiao and Graham Bennett.

Calling all local produce growers or creators...

We are keen to have a few more stalls on the Godley House grounds on Sunday afternoons. Locally grown or locally made produce sold by the creators is welcome. (Please note: as we have two great cafés on the doorstep, we would like the stalls to be along the lines of preserves, vegetables, plants, etc). For more details or to book a place ($10 contribution) contact Janet Luxton (329 4381) or Tracey Ower (329 4611) - we’d love to hear from you.

Follow SPRIG on the Diamond Harbour website www.diamondharbour.info and Facebook for up to date info. We look forward to a hot lazy summer down on the Point.

CIVIL DEFENCE UPDATE

Safely Storing Water

Your household water supply can be affected during an emergency. You need at least 3 litres of drinking water per person each day. You will also need water for pets, washing and cooking.

You can purchase bottled water or prepare your own containers of water. Use food grade storage containers or recycle plastic soft drink bottles.

Do not use milk containers as the milk protein cannot be adequately removed by washing and can harbour bacteria.

The Get Ready Get Thru brochure issued by Civil Defence contains the following advice for safely storing water:

1. Wash bottles thoroughly in hot water.
2. Fill each bottle with tap water until it overflows.
3. Add 5 drops of household bleach per litre of water and put into storage. Do not drink for at least 30 minutes after disinfecting.
4. Label bottles with the date they were filled and when they will need to be refilled.
5. Check the bottles every 12 months and replace if not clear.
6. Store bottles away from direct sunlight in a cool, dark place. Keep them in two separate places and where there is not likely to be any flooding.
7. Set up your water stores now and then go out and enjoy the warm weather!

Your Civil Defence Team

DH COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION

Candidates meeting
The feedback in the Herald about the Meet the Candidates evening in the Community Hall on Wednesday September 10 informed us that NZ First, Conservatives, Maori and Act Candidates showed a lack of interest and hadn’t bothered to turn up. Committee members pointed out that these candidates weren’t selected before the cut off date for invitations, so couldn’t be invited to our event.

Hall Report
A Have you turned the heater off? notice for the Hall will be put up in the hope heaters won’t be left on. Council will be asked if all the work to the Hall has been carried out. A few teething problems are being experienced about keys being picked up and Dave Heath not being notified. City Care and Council will be reminded he needs to know when they use the Hall. The Rugby Club is to be asked for a key to access the Hall from their foyer.

Sprig
The sponsorship agreement has been signed. There is $1,000 to pay for the curator’s fee for organising the sculpture exhibition. Andrea Wild, Liz Beaven and Pete Simpson organised flyers in letterboxes for community feedback in order to identify projects for the Long Term Plan. There are six key project options, which will dictate what the Board will put forward for planning.

Submissions
The Community Association supports Richard’s submission for the Draft District Plan. 1) That Morgan’s Gully is zoned as a Reserve and 2) That we support 400m² sections, where previously they had to be 600m².

DH VOLUNTEER FIRE BRIGADE
Once again the annual mushroom compost fund-raiser seems to have benefited both the Community and the Brigade. With our increasing need for a reliable operational support vehicle we take every opportunity to move the appeal forward. Thank you to everyone that bought the compost and especially to those of you that added an extra donation.

The compost did cause us a few concerns a couple of days earlier though. Just after the two large piles of smelly goodness were delivered, our station hosted some very important visitors. We were joined by the members of the New Zealand Fire Service Commission and our CEO. They had flown down from the North Island to come and see for themselves how Diamond Harbour is getting on with the prototype Fire Medical Vehicle (FMV). We gave a full account of our experiences so far and everyone seemed satisfied that they had chosen the right brigade for this important trial. We are likely to keep the FMV for another month or so before handing it over to Little River.

Barrier
Committee has been asked if a protective barrier could be put up along the side of the hall car park to stop the drift of dead foliage. This letter has also been sent to the Community Board.

Walking brochure
Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre is keen to produce a walking pamphlet for Diamond Harbour. This needs to be a priority for the summer and will be discussed at the next meeting. Concern was expressed about the delay in opening tracks.

Tree removal
City Care has started removing pine trees between Diamond Harbour and Purau Bay and has moved debris and waste from the foreshore.

Orton Bradley Pump track
Volunteers are needed to help with the Pump Track working bee on the 1 and 2 November. There is only one more bridge to put in before the mountain bike track is ready to use.

Morgan’s Gully
Progress is being made on Morgan’s Gully. Robyn Russ from Environment Canterbury will give ongoing support to ensure planting goes smoothly. Planting will be in autumn. Council has been asked to provide a memorandum to the agreement covering protection and fencing of the gully and liaison with the Department of Conservation.

Next meeting Monday November 10 at 7.30pm. Karen

Our old appliance (pictured above) has served us well for many years, but it too, will be moving on soon. It is being replaced by a new Ivecos. Some of us are excited about the prospect of power-steering and an automatic gearbox. Regardless of our mode of transport we’re all proud to be protecting what this community values.
